Q. For what reasons are tax returns selected for audit? Does an audit means the IRS thinks a taxpayer has filed a fraudulent return?

A. The usual reason for selecting a tax return for examination is to verify the correctness of income, exemptions, or deductions that have been reported on the return. However, some returns are selected as part of a random sample of research studies. The vast majority of taxpayers are honest and have nothing to fear from an examination of their tax returns. An examination of such a taxpayer's return does not suggest a suspicion of dishonesty or criminal liability. It may not even result in more tax. Many cases are closed without change in reported tax liability and, in many others, the taxpayer receives a refund.

Q. What is the federal gasoline and oil tax credit?

A. A credit of two cents per gallon may be claimed for gasoline (unless it was aviation fuel) used other than as a fuel in a highway vehicle registered, or required to be registered, for use on the public highway. Similarly, a six cents per gallon credit may be claimed for lubricating oil used other than in a highway motor vehicle. Examples of such use include the operation of a motor boat, a lawn mower, power saw and similar equipment. For more information, see IRS Publication 378, "Federal Fuel Tax Credit or Refund for Nonhighway and Transit Users." It's available free by calling or writing a nearby IRS office.

the business of being a woman...

Mother . . . Wife . . . Student . . . Career girl . . . You wonder how you manage to cram so much into a day.

Somewhere along the line do you find time for a Pap test once a year? It's quick. Painless. Usually negative. And then it's great to know you're free of uterine cancer.

Think about this: Uterine cancer is highly curable when detected early. That's what the Pap test can do . . . detect it early. Ten minutes. Once a year. For a simple test that can save your life. Take time out for it.
